Conditions Precedent:

Figure 1: Example of a $\mathbb{Z}_2$ -equivariant graph neural network. The input graph is a 2D grid of nodes (blue squares) and edges (black lines). The nodes are labeled with their coordinates (x, y) and their value (0 or 1). The graph is processed by a $\mathbb{Z}_2$ -equivariant graph neural network (GNN) to produce a graph representation (green squares) and a graph embedding (green circles). The graph representation is a 2D grid of nodes and edges, where the nodes are labeled with their coordinates and their value (0 or 1). The graph embedding is a vector of size 10, where each element is a scalar value. The graph representation and graph embedding are used to compute the graph's properties, such as its Laplacian eigenvalues and eigenvectors.

Figure 10: The distribution of the number of nodes in the network. The x-axis represents the number of nodes (0 to 100), and the y-axis represents the probability (0.00 to 0.25). The distribution is highly skewed, with a peak at 1 node and a long tail extending to 100 nodes. The mean number of nodes is 6865.
